

Polites – Cives – Citoyen
Ein interdisziplinärer Dialog über Bürgerrecht und Staatsangehörigkeit

VILLA VIGONI-GESPRÄCH IN DEN
GEISTES-UND SOZIALWISSENSCHAFTEN

im Rahmen der Vereinbarung mit der Deutschen Forschungsgemeinschaft

Villa Vigoni, 11.–14. Oktober 2013

Friday, 11 October

13.30–14.30 Lunch

I Citizen & Status (Alexandra Eckert)

This section is concerned with the interrelation between citizenship and the individual. Contributions will look beyond the political and explore how the possession or non-possession of citizenship can affect the – social, economic, cultural, educational – status of people. And how is, on the other hand, the citizen – citoyen, polites, cives – modelled by social rules and standards?

14.30–14.45 Welcome, Introduction

14.45–15.30

Hans-Ulrich Thamer, Münster – Der Citoyen und die Ikonographie der Französischen Revolution.

15.30–16.15

Christoph Conrad, Genf – Integration durch Bürgerrechte (19.–20. Jahrhundert)

16.15–16.30 Break

16.30–17.15

Kostas Buraselis, Athen – Die Constitutio Antoniniana

17.15–18.00

Valerio Marotta, Pavia – Egizii, civitas Alexandrina e cittadinanza romana

18.00–19.00 Table ronde discussion

19.30–21.30 Dinner

Saturday, 12 October

09.00–09.45

Altay Coşkun, Waterloo – Perikles und der Entzug des Bürgerstatus im imperialistischen Athen, 445 v.Chr

09.45–10.15

Michael Sommer, Oldenburg – Bürgerrecht als Prestigeressource – antik und modern

10.45–11.00 Break

II Citizen & State (Volker Grieb)

Contributions investigate the interdependence between (concepts of) citizenship and states/governments across different periods and geographic areas. They will primarily focus on individual political entities. In what ways is citizenship constituent to the state? In what ways does citizenship imply political participation and access to institutions? Is there a distinction between subjects and citizens? Is the state conceived as the totality of its citizens? How do different types of states – empires, nation states, city states – shape citizenship?

11.30–12.15

Uwe Walter, Bielefeld – Bürger und Partizipation im antiken Hellas

12.15–13.00

Clemens Jürgenmeyer, Freiburg – Bürgersein und Bürgerrecht in Indien

13.00–14.30 Lunch

14.30–15.15

Thomas Lau, Fribourg – Unser lieben alten Eidgenossen? Der Konflikt um die Definition des Eidgenossenbegriffes in der Schweiz des 17. Jahrhunderts

15.15–16.00

Tobias Nowak, Groningen – Bürgerrechte in der EU. Auf dem Weg zu einem Europa der Bürger?

16.00–16.15 Break

16.15–17.00

Tilman Lüdke, Freiburg – Staaten ohne Staatsbürger: Hindernisse für Bürgerlichkeit im Modernen Nahen Osten

17.00–18.00 Table ronde discussion

19.30–21.30 Dinner

Sunday, 13 October

09.30–10.15 Guided tour of Villa Mylius Vigoni

III Citizen & Globalisation (Michael Sommer)

Exploring the scope for citizenship in supra- and inter-state environments, the final section opens a universal perspective on citizenship. How does the concept work at the level of multinational political organisations (such as the EU) or religious communities with a claim to universalism (such as the Christian church in Late Antiquity)? Is citizenship in an age of increasingly powerless governments still a viable concept? How can participation be guaranteed when political decision making takes place at a higher level and becomes more detached from people?

10.30–11.15

Volker Grieb, Hamburg – Bürger und Bürgerrechte in der globalisierten Welt des Hellenismus

11.15–11.45 Break

11.45–12.30

Rainer Bauböck, Firenze – Gestaltwandel des Demos: Die Einbeziehung von Emigranten und Immigranten in Staatsbürgerschaft und Wahlrechte aus der Sicht der Demokratietheorie

12.30–14.30 Lunch

14.30–15.15

Laura Leonardi, Firenze – Cittadinanza sociale e globalizzazione

15.15–16.00

Hartmut Leppin, Frankfurt – Bürger, Untertan und Christ. Bürgerrecht im spätantiken Römischen Reich

16.00–16.30 Break

16.30–18.00 Table ronde discussion – concluding remarks

19.30–21.30 Dinner

Monday, 14 October 2013

Breakfast and Departure